CRIPPEN SENTENCED TO HANG M'CANDLESS OWN PARTY HITS AT HIM

COL. M'CARTHY TAKES COUNTY CHAIRMANSHIP

OAHU DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE ACCEPTS AS LEADER AND CAMPAIGN MANAGER MAN WHO IS OPENLY OPPOSED TO M'CANDLESS—THROWING OVER M'CANDLESS IN STRENUOUS EFFORT TO SAVE THE COUNTY TICKET.

Col. C. J. McCarthy has jumped back into the political arena and taken the management of the Democratic local campaign, but not for Link McCandless. "My views as to L. L. McCandless have not changed," the colonel said this morning, which means that he will not support McCandless. In spite of this plain declaration, the Democratic county committee today re-elected him a member of the committee and then made him chairman.

McCarthy explains his position by saying that the Republicans are making a general onslaught upon the Democratic county candidates, on the immigration issue, and that he does not consider this a fair proposition. "The fight which the Republicans are concentrating upon Trent and other Democratic county officials, and the use of the immigration issue in that fight, is the cause of my returning to take part in the campaign," said Col. McCarthy. The colonel, it will be remembered, quit the game withdrawing as a candidate for Senator, when the Democratic convention adopted the McCandless immigration platform.

"The Republicans nominated their county ticket before they adopted any platform at all. Then they had their convention wait until after the platform had been adopted before naming the candidates for the legislature. The reason for this was that it was recognized that the county candidates need not endorse territorial platform, but the legislative candidates must. Yet in the face of this declaration of their own, the Republicans are concentrating their fire on Trent, a purely county officer, on the ground of the territorial immigration platform."

"All of the Democrats who have left the party will now join in the work for the county ticket. It is plain that there is a general Republican effort to sweep the field and get hold of the machine so that we shall not have a look-in any more."

"My opinions as to Link McCandless have not changed at all."

The action of the county committee in appointing a chairman and campaign manager who is openly opposed to the Democratic candidate for delegate to Congress is a most unusual political move. It is a slap in the face for McCandless from his own party. The county candidates have decided to go it alone, run their own campaign and leave Link to his own campaign. The return of McCarthy and others to the county campaign fold therefore only widens the split in the party.

The re-drafting of Col. McCarthy as an active campaign manager is said to be the result of quite a scare among the candidates on the Democratic ticket. The confidence of a few weeks past has given way to feelings of alarm, under the influence of the Republican meetings.

During the past week, the first week of the Republican nightly meetings, the evidences of accumulating Republican strength have been such as to give a scare to the other side.

McCarthy was long ago slated for campaign manager, and expected to take the helm. Then came the convention in which Link McCandless pushed through his famous immigration plank, with the aid of delegates from the outside islands and against the judgment of nearly all the party leaders, and McCarthy withdrew altogether, declining to run for the Senate or take any part in politics. Now, near the end of the campaign, he has come forth in the effort to save the county ticket, but still declines to support the head of the whole ticket.

REPUBLICANS IN HILO ARE VERY HOPEFUL

(Wireless to The Star.)

HILO, October 22.—An enthusiastic meeting of Republicans was held last night to urge straight ticket voting, all present being strongly urged to stand for the whole party ticket.

McCandless and several haole who are supporting him were severely routed for drawing the color line and raising the race issue, also for stirring up the more ignorant voters by misstatements and impossible promises.

According to the present appearances Kihio should carry this island by 200 more than before.

MOTT-SMITH VISITS THE LEPER SETTLEMENT AND INSPECTS MAUI PLANTATIONS

E. A. Mott-Smith returned this morning from Maui after a trip in the official capacities of President of the Board of Health and Secretary of the Territory. He has had rather a strenuous trip, for he crowded a lot of work into the short tour that he made.

The purpose of the visit was to make the quarterly inspection of the leper settlement, inspect the harbor of Kahului and surroundings, the laborers' quarters of the sugar companies in that vicinity, and for clearing up any matters of doubt with regard to registration and conduct of the approaching election.

At the leper settlement at Molokai a great many improvements are being carried out, such as the construction of new dormitories for the Bishop home for girls, and repairing, painting and re-shingling in various parts of the buildings. These improvements were begun about six months ago, and are now nearing completion. Nearly all the detached houses have had kitchens added to them. One thousand gallons of green stain were sent down, and now there is an excellent uniformity about the premises. The hospital has been better equipped, and improvements have been effected at the dispensary and in the water system; in fact everywhere improvements have been carried out. This no doubt accounts for the great contentment that the President found on every side.

Leaving there on Tuesday morning, Mr. Mott-Smith went around the eastern end of the island and landed at Lahaina at about five o'clock. He made a short tour of inspection of the town in the light that remained, on account of the Board of Health. Next morning he went back to Wailuku town and straightened out a few matters for the Board of Registration there in connection with election inspectors. He next inspected the entire harbor at Kahului and the wharfage system right out to the end of the breakwater, making a tour of all the wharves, warehouses, etc., in order to familiarize himself with the conditions. Mr. Mott-Smith went over to the Pull of Kahului to look into the laborers' quarters of the Hawaiian Commercial Sugar Co., and then went back to Wailuku and made an inspection of laborers' camps at the Wailuku Sugar Co.'s plantations.

Mr. Mott-Smith said that he could not help paying a tribute to Mr. Penhallow, the manager of the plantation, for the excellent manner in which the camps were kept. The camps were as clean as any that Mott-Smith had ever visited in the Territory. They were well constructed, there was plenty of air space, were well arranged and the sanitary arrangements were good. Mott-Smith expressed himself as well pleased at what he had seen, and was glad to recognize that the manager of the plantation values so highly the necessity of providing suitable quarters in order to safeguard the health of the laborers, as well as making for their contentment and happiness, thus increasing their efficiency.

From this point a trip was made to Lahaina and Japanese town was visited. After an inspection of that portion of the town, Mr. Mott-Smith had a conference with Manager Weinsheimer regarding the hospital that he is establishing there, and sanitary conditions on the plantation.

Mr. Mott-Smith said that the trip over the Pull was made on horse back, in order to see what the trail was like. He knew it was a hazardous proceeding on account of the trail being so rugged, for in places it was liberally strewn with boulders that almost effectively blocked the way, while there is a drop on one side that means certain death if the horse should fall that way. The object of going on horseback was to ascertain whether the trail could be put into passable condition at a fairly low cost, because if this route were in anything like good condition, it could be used for the conveyance of mails and would be the means of effecting a saving of over a day. At present the trip by steamer involves a long and circuitous route, whereas if it can be done by horseback, then a considerable saving is effected. Mr. Mott-Smith fully appreciated the dangers that beset those who wish to make the trip on horseback under present conditions, but it has convinced him that it would not be asking too much to move the legislature to vote a sum of money for the repairing of the trail to make it better. What makes the trip more hazardous is the fact that the pull stands out alone; there are no nearby peaks to engage one's attention, and in many places there is a sheer drop from the narrow trail, while portions are so steep that it would be impossible to stop one's self, if by any chance a false step were made. With the trail in good order, however, the trip would be comparatively safe and easy. Another point that claimed attention was the fact that cattle could be driven over this route, which would mean a considerable saving in the cost of purchase, and the animals would be landed in better condition than they are now after a rough sea trip. Already the pull has exacted a fairly heavy toll in the way of human and animal life, but if the legislature can be moved to make the appropriation to be asked for, then a considerable saving in time, life and money should be effected.

ENGLISH COURT GIVES MURDERER BUT LITTLE TIME

(Associated Press Cable to The Star.)

LONDON, October 22.—The jury in the case of Dr. Crippen, charged with the murder of his wife, brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, after deliberating only half an hour.

The doctor was immediately sentenced to be hanged on Nov. 15. Dr. Crippen was very pale when the jury came into court with its verdict, but he received the verdict calmly. He again protested his innocence.

Dr. Crippen's trial began on the 18th. He took the stand in his own defense, and denied the crime charged to him, claiming that the remains found in his former home, which were claimed to be those of his wife, murdered and then buried in cement under the floor, were not the remains of Mrs. Crippen at all. The case has attracted world-wide attention, and was vigorously contested, but the jurors found little to deliberate over when the case was placed in their hands.

The trial of Miss Leneve, who fled to America with the doctor and has been accused as his accomplice, has been set for next Tuesday.
